103 HULMEVILLE RESIDENTS ASK WATER EXTENSION

Petition Borough Council To Endeavor to Get CWA Assistance

BODY IS REORGANIZED

Four Councilmen Sworn In By Burgess Illick; Two New Members

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 9.—Reorganization, receipt of a petition from the tax-payers requesting that water mains through the borough be extended, and a general discussion as to the manner in which jobs are apportioned on CWA projects featured the meeting of borough council last night.

A petition, signed by 103 residents, a majority of whom are said to be property owners, requested borough council to extend the water mains through the entire borough so that water would be available for domestic and industrial purposes as well as fire purposes, suggesting that the work might be done as a CWA project.

Water is now furnished to a small portion of the municipality by the Langhorne Spring Water Company. It was the consensus of opinion of the majority of a delegation of 40 residents attending the meeting that now is the psychological time to undertake the project. It was pointed out to council last night that the time may soon come when the borough will be forced to provide an adequate water supply, and distribution system, specified instances being mentioned where the health committee has been asked to investigate contaminated wells due to the close proximity of cess-pools.

It was also called to the attention of council by one of those in attendance at the meeting that should an adequate water supply be provided there was a possibility of lower fire insurance rates. It was also emphasized that labor represents approximately 60 per cent of the cost of such a project as is under consideration, and that if the project was deferred until after the expiration of the CWA program of the federal government, that this portion of the cost would also fall upon the borough, where it was taken up under the CWA project the labor costs would be paid by the federal government.

A motion made by D. Adler, and seconded by George Dicken, was passed, providing for the appointment of two members of borough council and two members of a citizens' committee to make inquiries into possibility of getting water for the borough and report at a meeting at the call of the chair. The personnel of the committee included: Messrs. Adler and Dicken, councilmen; Washington Head, C. Wesley Haefner and Richard A. Hopkins.

A resolution was adopted by council transferring $1500 from the general fund of the borough to the sinking fund.

Council reorganized by the election of the officers, with Burgess Samuel J. Illick presiding during the reorganization. Officers elected were: President, Cyrus E. Smith; secretary, Thomas B. Longhurst; treasurer, Grace H. Illick. Mr. Longhurst succeeds Lester D. Spill as secretary, Mr. Spill resigning last evening.

Oath of office was administered by Burgess Illick to: H. L. Moser, Sr., and D. Adler, who were re-elected as councilmen in November; Stanley Buckman and William Codling, who succeeded as members of the governing body C. W. Haefner and Daniel Flum. In addition to these four the council members are C. E. Smith, George Dicken and Norman Davis. Mr. Davis was elected temporary chairman of council, to serve in this capacity until the return of the president from a Southern trip.

A motion was passed to hold up the present CWA project, which includes improvements to streets and the town hall, until liability insurance is procured, and in the meantime it was suggested that those in charge of the project endeavor to have men who are on the local relief lists placed.

The petition for the extension of water mains reads as follows:

Hulmeville, Pa., January 6th, 1934.
To the Chief Burgess and Members of Borough Council, Hulmeville, Pa.
We the undersigned residents of the borough of Hulmeville, Pennsylvania, do hereby petition you as members of the governing body of this borough, and pray that our petition be granted for the extension of the water mains through the entire borough of Hulmeville for domestic use and fire protection.

We suggest that this work might be done under the Civil Works Administration and petition for the extension of the water mains in Hulmeville Borough on this basis.

Salaries of Morrisville Officials Are Reduced

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 9.—Reorganization meeting of Morrisville borough council was marked last evening by reduction of the salaries of the secretary and treasurer. The salary of the first named officer was reduced from $900 to $400, while that of the treasurer was lowered from $600 to $400.

The monthly meeting date was changed from the third Tuesday to the second Friday.

Deciding to shift some of the duties of the secretary and treasurer to other departments, council voted drastic reductions in the salaries of William H. Howe, reelected borough secretary, and Watson J. Simmons, borough treasurer. In the election of officers Abram T. Lynch was named president of council by acclamation for his second two-year term, and Willard S. Curtin was named borough solicitor to succeed J. Lawrence Grimm, Democrat, who resigned.

PETITION COURT TO SPLIT ELECTION DISTRICT

Lower Southampton Voters Want Their District Divided

900 VOTERS ARE LISTED

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 9.—At the opening of the January term of civil court yesterday, a petition of voters of Lower Southampton township was filed in the Court of Quarter Sessions asking for a division of the election district in which they reside.

The petition, filed by the attorney for the petitioners, sets forth that there are 923 registered voters in Lower Southampton township. The petition further avers that because of the fact there is but one polling place in the township, that inconvenience, confusion and congestion take place at every election. Over 500 voters went to the polling place, in a small chapel building at the last election.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller announced the re-appointment of Joseph Lapp as clerk of the Jury Commissioners for 1934.

In Quarter Sessions Court, a petition was filed asking for the appointment of a jury of inspection for County Bridge No. 340, over the tracks of the Reading Railroad Company on Hulmeville avenue, between South Langhorne and Langhorne Manor.

The first case called for trial in Civil Court was that of Sallie M. Feather, claimant, against the Doylestown Agricultural Company, in which Howard I. James, of Bristol, represents the plaintiff and Thomas Ross the defendant.

Iron and Steel Production Sagged Sharply During Holidays

EXPECTED TO IMPROVE

Average Pick-Up Better Than Since October, 1931

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9.—(INS)—With trade showing recovery from its Christmas week slump, Pennsylvania business activity and production Saturday closed the first week of the new year showing substantially better averages than at any time since October, 1931.

Iron and steel production sagged sharply during the holiday period but an improvement set in during the latter days of this week and although the output was off slightly from preceding weeks, figures were expected to improve during the coming week.

Railroad purchases have failed to materialize thus far during the year but the general opinion is that they will soon be transmitted. The only important rail order thus far is that of 100,000 tons of rail for the Pennsylvania.

However, other substantial orders from roads will be forthcoming and automotive demands should show improvement as the year progresses. PWA work is also expected to aid steel recovery.

Coal operations continued to show improvement, the 40-hour week of miners making it possible to avoid the holiday layoffs. Coal output currently is close to 80 per cent on the corrected index.

Coke production continued good during the week and figures released showed that 1933 again placed this industry in the million-dollar class in the Connellsburg region. According to the Connellsburg Courier's survey, a net gain of 139,420 tons of coke was produced in 1933 over 1932. This survey also showed that price tonnage improved slightly from the low reached in 1932.

Railroad freight car loadings are also showing up better at the present time than they did at the opening of 1932 and 1933. The Pennsylvania Railroad's figures on this item for the first five days of the year showed the tremendous gain of 44 per cent over a year ago and 13 per cent above 1932's opening week.

The oil outlook is gradually improving and the present year is expected to be better than last. Stabilization of the price level and the allowable output fixed by the government is expected to be helpful. Production this

AWARD CONTRACT FOR COLLECTION OF ASHES

H. H. Howell Is Successful Bidder For 1934 Contract

PRICE FIXED AT $2,474.74

Borough council last night awarded a contract for collection of ashes and rubbish, approved employment of a tree expert to supervise CWA workmen trimming trees in the borough and heard the reports of the police and fire committees for the year 1933.

President Wagner stated that he would defer the appointment of the various committees of council for a few days.

Bids for ash and rubbish collection were presented by Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., and upon the recommendation of the committee, contract was awarded to H. H. Howell for $2474.74.

This is $275.26 lower than was paid last year for the ash collection.

The bids submitted were as follows: Noah West, $2675; Frank Scheetz, $1800; Lester Jones, $2750; C. A. Weber, $2820; Jesse Jones, $24.00; John McCue, $2650; Roy Heller, $3600; A. Paci, $3200. Paci is the present holder of the contract.

Mr. Schmidt stated that Mr. Scheetz was unable to get a bond and that Jesse Jones bidding $24 was not a resident of Bristol.

"Mr. Howell is well equipped for the job and can provide a bondsman."

Monthly report of police committee showed eight arrests. Three were held for court, four discharged and one committed to jail.

There were 159 lodgers given shelter.

COUNCIL EXPRESSES APPRECIATION FOR GIFT BY MR. GRUNDY

$5000 Donation Made CWA Project Here Possible, It Is Stated

ADOPT RESOLUTION

Burgess Anderson Comments Upon the Many Generous Donations of Mr. Grundy

Borough Council last night placed upon record its appreciation of a gift of $5,000 by Joseph R. Grundy which made possible fluting into effect the Civil Works project of extending the Bristol water mains into Bristol Township.

A resolution of explanation and appreciation was unanimously adopted and Burgess Clifford L. Anderson orally expressed his appreciation of not only the $5,000 gift of Mr. Grundy in this instance, but the numerous and generous contributions which Mr. Grundy has made from time to time to the finances of the borough, as well as giving of his time, advice and experience in behalf of the borough.

"Your Burgess does not often have the opportunity to vote, being permitted to do so only in the matter of veto or a tie ballot. But this is a time when I do want to express my appreciation not only for this one gift of our fellow townsman, Joseph R. Grundy, but for the many gifts, which he has made to this borough.

"I have been associated with Mr. Grundy in financial and governmental affairs for the past 20 years and I have seen him make up deficits and even this very building we are in with its equipment was a gift from him.

"He has not only given thousands or hundreds of thousands, but I know personally that he has given more than a million dollars in all to this borough for the benefit of its citizens.

"In addition he has given of his time and effort and much of his experience for the benefit of this borough and those who reside here."

The resolution adopted was as follows:

A RESOLUTION OF EXPLANATION AND APPRECIATION

Preamble

The underlying facts of this situation are these:

The Federal Government, through its Civil Works Administration (C. W. A.), having purposed to aid communities in the financing of useful public works which would supply employment for those without work, the authorities of Bristol Borough and Township determined upon this undertaking which not only supplies a maximum amount of work for the unemployed, but also furnishes a permanent investment of continuing benefit and value to all concerned.

This project involves the laying of 23 miles of water main to supply Bristol water to Bristol Township for fire protection, commercial and household use. In round figures, the total cost, for labor and materials, will be $200,000.

The Borough was able to furnish only $17,500. The maximum borrowing capacity of Bristol Township produced $80,000 more, which sum the Borough will repay to the Town.

HIGHWAY FATALITIES IN 1933 TOTALLED FOURTEEN

In Section Covered by Patrolmen From Doylestown Sub-Station

226 WERE INJURED

The number of persons killed on highways within the territory covered by state highway patrolmen of Doylestown sub-station during the year 1933, is given at 24, while the number of injured in '33 accidents is 226.

The patrolmen state that every injury and fatality was due to some sort of recklessness on the part of the driver of an automobile, but the yearly average of 1933 indicates that car-drivers last year were more careful than in 1932.

The most frequent violation in 1933 that patrolmen had to deal with was "passing a stop sign at the intersection of state highways."

The Doylestown sub-station of State Highway Patrol is composed of Sergeant Albert A. Discavage, inspector-sergeant of the Doylestown and South Langhorne sub-stations. LET THE PUBLIC KNOW

The New York stock exchange has an opportunity to prove its sincerity in its professed willingness to effect, itself, needed reforms to escape threatened Federal regulation.

The opportunity has come with the meeting of Congress which is expected to pry into the affairs of the exchange with the object of assuring greater protection to the investing public. It was provided by the case of the Atlas Tack Company, a skyrocketing stock, which advanced during the year from 1 1/2 to 34 3/4. That the advance was due to manipulation is the belief of those who followed its gyrations. Following a sudden break that carried it down 20 points within a week, the stock exchange discontinued trading in it.

The public, especially that part of it that suffered a loss in Atlas Tack, has a right to know what caused the collapse as well as other features in connection with the stock's history.

"It can only be expected," says the Wall Street Journal, "that the exchange will promptly and exhaustively set forth the inside history of the Atlas Tack affair."

This the exchange will do if it is sincerely interested in setting its house in order and keeping it in order. A frank treatment of the Atlas Tack case might go far in convincing Congress that Federal regulation of the exchange was not needed.

LINDBERGH IN NEW ROLE

The entire nation will be interested in reports that Colonel Lindbergh has taken a hand in the controversy between Orville Wright and the Smithsonian institution, with the hope of effecting a reconciliation that will permit the institution to come into possession of the first Wright airplane.

The dispute, it will be recalled, arose out of the Smithsonian's action in giving credit to Professor Langley for inventing the airplane. Marking the controversy was an actual flight of the Langley machine but long after the Wright brothers had proved at Kitty Hawk, N. C., man's actual conquest of the air. Important changes in the Langley plane were made before the ancient craft was taken from the institution and raised into the air, it was charged by Mr. Wright.

Colonel Lindbergh's opinion has been on the side of the Wright brothers, who first proved by a demonstration that a heavier-than-air machine could fly. Other experimenters and inventors had fallen short of this goal.

Colonel Lindbergh seems the proper person to attempt a settlement of the dispute. He is the nation's, if not the world's premier aviator. He has an intense interest in aviation, to the development of which he has contributed much. If he succeeds in settling the Wright-Smithsonian controversy, he will have added to his laurels as a great flyer, an important achievement as a diplomat.

There's one thing about the old car. It won't lose half of its value within the next week as a new one would.

ship, in full. Following protracted negotiations, C. W. A. put its maximum figure at $75,000 for labor and $20,000 for materials. Thus, after every source of financing was exhausted, there was still a gap of $5,000, without which no part of the financing could be procured, or any part of the project started.

Now Whereas, This project has put 500 of the unemployed of Bristol add its environs to work at the rate of pay established by C.W.A.

And Whereas, This is a project by which Bristol Township, heretofore without water supply, will be given fire protection, commercial and household supply, to the great enhancement of safety, convenience, comfort, health, and property values;

And Whereas, the taxpayers of Bristol will be benefitted by a revenue which will liquidate the Borough's investment and the interest thereon, after which the project will be a source of regular additional revenue;

And Whereas, none of these advantages and benefits—to be employed, to the householders and property owners of Bristol Township, and to the taxpayers of Bristol Borough alike—would have been possible under the total sum of money obtainable from the regular sources of financing, and as a consequence of which the entire project was threatened;

And Whereas, our fellow townsman, Mr. Joseph R. Grundy, with splendid local patriotism and real and constructive philanthropy, has given the needed $5,000 without which this work and consequent improvement would not have been possible;

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Borough Council of Bristol, in grateful acceptance of this gift on behalf of the Borough of Bristol and the Township of Bristol, do hereby record our deep appreciation of the splendid and generous assistance given to the Borough and Township, and to the unemployed, in this emergency;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That this Preamble and Resolution be made a part of the record of this meeting, and that copies thereof be sent to Mr. Joseph R. Grundy and to the press.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

Next day at noon Clark telephoned.

Patricia sat down beside the telephone. Clark's voice, happy and confident, came to her over the wire. Clark's voice planning their afternoon, as he had so often planned it. Would she lunch with him? She had to clear her throat before he heard her say she would.

"Then, I'll meet you at our usual place."

"Yes, Clark."

She did not say that this luncheon would be their last together. But that knowledge was in her heart as she dressed. She selected her costume carefully, mechanically, choosing his favorite color, his favorite hat. As she had been used to do, she took a bus and rode down town along Fifth Avenue, brilliant in the sunshine, crowded with women shoppers. At the familiar side-street she descended, saw Clark waiting in his usual place in his car, saw him spring to the curb, as she came down the steep little flight of stairs from the bus top. A moment later his arm was linked through her arm, he was smiling down at her in the old, contented way.

"You look tired, honey," he said, as he helped her up the step of the low-slung roadster and dropped on the creaking leather cushions at her side.

"I am tired."

"Is something wrong?"

"Everything is," she said and took the plunge. There should be no more meetings between them. Julian objected.

"Julian objects! That's a laugh," said Clark, half annoyed, half amused, wholly unconcerned. The girl's face did not lighten. "Surely," the man exclaimed, surprised, "surely you aren't serious. You're not going to let him get away with any such nonsense?"

The silence deepened between them. Patricia was staring at the shiny metal of the dashboard. Clark regarded her anxiously, perturbed, his forehead drawn in puzzled lines. The girl raised eyes that shone with tears.

"I can't do anything else, Clark. I—after all I live with him."

"That's just it," he said peremptorily and in some vague fashion, relieved. "That's been the trouble all along. I've been waiting for some time to talk to you seriously. Now listen," he resumed, proceeding in matter of fact tones, "now listen to me. There's no reason why you should depend on Julian Haverholt another minute. You're far too modest about your own abilities."

"It's not a question of my own abilities."

"You wait till I finish," he swept on, eager to present his plan. "There's a new bridge club opening out on the Island—mother has something to do with it—I can slide you into a place there in double-quick time. In fact—"

Patricia interrupted quickly. "Julian depends on me."

"What rot," he said, laughing at her. "I never saw a man more capable of taking care of himself."

"I can't leave him," she persisted, frightened. "I can't let you be responsible for getting me into your mother's club."

"Of course you can. I want to do it. Don't talk about my responsibility. I'm surprised you could even think such a thing. Personally," he said in a rush, "I'm glad Julian has given you this chance to strike out for yourself. I haven't been awfully happy about you, Patricia," he admitted, looking at her gravely. "I hate to criticize Julian," he continued, embarrassed, "but just the same I'm going to. Julian may be the greatest bridge player in the world but there are other things in the world besides bridge?"

"Honor, for instance," said Clark, plowing grimly ahead despite his companion's distress. "You don't understand Julian's reputation, Patricia. I do. People say he's a pack-ster; they call him the Al Capone of bridge."

"He calls himself that," put in the girl faintly.

"That's all right for him. He's a man. You're too sweet, honey, to be mixed up with Julian Haverholt and his egotistical, deliberately shocking, deliberately immoral notions of how to get ahead. I know you're loyal to him. I admire you for it. But, you can't convince me that you approve of his methods."

"I don't know what I approve of," she protested helplessly and distrustfully. Nothing was going as she had planned it.

"I know you don't approve," said Clark decidedly. "You're far too fine and decent. Then, why should you suffer for Julian's sins? There's no reason except a sentimental reason. Believe me there isn't. This is your chance to make a break; you've got to take it even if it seems hard to you. It's natural, Patricia, it's only right that you should think first of your own reputation."

She was thinking of nothing else. Julian held her reputation in his hands. She wanted to scream at Clark. The words clogged in her throat. What would he think of her if he really understood the situation? He had called her fine and decent.

She only said mechanically, "I've got to stay with Julian. I must, Clark."

"You must not. He's given you a legitimate complaint. You can leave him tomorrow. This Long Island bridge club will accept you today—I'm sure of it. I'll telephone this afternoon."

Despair chilled the girl. She shook her bright head.

"No, Clark, no. I'm staying with Julian."

He had been holding her hands. He dropped them now. He was suddenly convinced. With his conviction came hurt and anger. They were still parked on the side-street. People were hurrying in and out the buildings nearby, happy people, busy people. Patricia stared at them. She turned when Clark said flatly:

"So you aren't interested in my proposition."

"I can't accept it, Clark. I am grateful but I can't let you do such a thing for me."

"Of course, my mother's club is small," he conceded bitterly. "It wouldn't offer you the sort of future that Julian offers."

They were talking like strangers. Nothing seemed natural or right. She could not make it right. She could not make him see. The world was all awry. She was quarrelling, quarrelling with Clark.

"Do you mean, Patricia, that you intend to obey Julian's order? Do you actually mean to say that you won't see me again?"

"You must understand. It's not by my wish or my desire,"

"Oh, I understand all right," he remarked, emotionlessly. "I understand exactly how I rate with you, happy about you, Patricia," he admitted, looking at her gravely. "I hate to criticize Julian," he continued, embarrassed, "but just the same I'm going to. Julian may be the greatest bridge player in the world but there are other things in the world besides bridge?"

"Honor, for instance," said Clark, plowing grimly ahead despite his companion's distress. "You don't understand Julian's reputation, Patricia. I do. People say he's a pack-ster; they call him the Al Capone of bridge."

PREFERENCE SHOWN FOR LAME FOR BOTH AFTERNOON, EVENING

By Nadia De Beand

(L. N. S. Fashion Correspondent) PARIS—(INS)—The preference given to lame extends not only to evening wear, but also to afternoon clothes. This was clear at the recent cocktail party given by Countess Ciani in her elegant home.

I noted the Princess Andrea Boncompagni in a brown woolen tailor from Chanel, with revers, pockets, a scarf and waistcoat underneath, all in gold lame.

The Countess San-Just wore a navy velvet tailor made, the skirt very wide at the hem with a close fitting jacket buttoned down the front with velvet covered buttons. The blouse was in rose lame.

In contrast to these was the black gown from Lelong of a dull surface material worn by the Baroness Thyssen. It clung closely with wide leg of mutton sleeves, tight to the wrists. Ruby clips relieved the outfit.

EVERYTHING HAPPENS IN THE BACK OF NEW GOWNS FOR EVENING

By Nadia De Beand

(L. N. S. Fashion Correspondent) PARIS—I have already spoken of the prevalence of velvet for evening wear. Another striking note about the new evening gowns is that everything happens in the back for the décolleté's invariably high in front. When the wearer turns, she presents an utterly bare back.

A number of the gowns have long sleeves, adding a Renaissance touch which is most flattering, as it gives a long and slender line still more accentuated by the short train.

At a recent dinner at the Ritz the Marquise Sommi-Piccardi, who is an American, wore just such a gown from Lelong: black velvet, bare back, long sleeves and short train. A strass buckle was the only touch of brightness. With this she wore a black evening coat, quite straight in line, almost to the ground and without sleeves.

LADY DETERLING HAS A SMART OUTFIT IN SILVER, RED, BLACK

Ruby Clips Shown at Neckline; Necklace of Diamonds and Rubies Worn

By Nadia De Beand

(L. N. S. Fashion Correspondent) PARIS—Several extremely smart receptions have been given recently by visiting society women, among the smartest being a cocktail party given at the Hotel Crillon by Lady Deterling, wife of the President of the Royal Dutch Shell Company. The hostess wore a black crepe gown from Jeanne Lanvin, reaching to her ankles. Over this was a short jacket of silver lame, entirely quilted, and a wide brilliant red sash, tied around the waist and falling low on each side. There were ruby clips on the neckline of the gown and a necklace of diamonds and rubies.

The Princess Jean-Louis de Farnesny-Lusigny arrived in a black velvet coat from Lucien Lelong, closing snugly at the neck, with silver fox rolled around the sleeves, beginning at the shoulders down to the wrists. Her hat was a small velvet toque.

I especially noticed Lady Deterling's silver kid sandals, showing the toes.

The Center Leaves have the finest Tobacco Quality

that's why only center leaves are used in Luckies

The first thing people see and like about Luckies is how round and firm they are. The tobacco doesn't spill out and there are no loose ends to cling to lips. That's because we pack each and every Lucky full to the brim with long, even strands of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos—only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed.

Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves—because they are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. That's why Luckies always draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth. So smoke a Lucky, a fully packed cigarette. And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

ST. ANN'S FIVE UPSET
Y. M. A. IN CAGE BATTLE

(By T. M. Juno)

Every seat available was taken last night in the Italian Mutual Aid Hall as the second half of the Bristol Basketball League got under way. In the opening match, the St. Ann's A. five upset the Young Men's Association, 34-30. It was the first victory of the season for the St. Ann's team.

The fray was fast and close from beginning to end. Fouling was plentiful and Referee Herman Baetzel had a job on his hands trying to detect all the fouls. In all St. Ann's received 32 tries from the gift mark while the losers took 29. The winners sunk in 20 of their tries which was four more than the Y's.

The game was put on ice in the last two minutes of play. With the score deadlocked at 30 all, when Bailey made a field and foul goal for the Y. M. A., Gilbert was fouled and he put the St. Ann's quintet into the lead by converting the point. On the tapoff, the 1932 champions had three tries to take the lead with shots under the basket but they all went wild. Russo took the ball out of a scrimmage and passed to Pieo who scored from the side, putting the Saints three points to the good. Before the game ended, Fandetta recorded another foul.

"Bucky" Russo, former Cathedral High School star from Trenton, was the leader of the Purple and Gold rout of the Y. M. A. team. Russo hit the cords for four field goals and five fouls, a total of thirteen points. Three of his goals were the result of dribbling the entire length of the floor and score untouched. "Joie" Gilbert made everyone of his five tries from the foul line.

For the losers, "Dick" Brown was chalked up with a field goal and eight fouls in twelve tries while "Reds" Bailey took three fouls and a like number of double-deckers.

PAPER MAKERS WIN
OVER THIRD WARD NINE

The second match last evening in the Bristol Basketball League brought together the Third Ward A. C. and the Paterson Parchment Paper Company. The tilt kept the spectators on the edge of their seats all night as thrilling shots were counted by both sides. After 40 minutes of milling the final tabulations were: Paterson Parchment Paper Company, 35; Third Ward A. C., 32.

"Danny" Hines' twin-pointers, six in all, and his good shooting from the fifteen foot mark represented the Paterson team's margin of victory. All of Hines' baskets were made in running style under the net and came in crucial moments of the fray to take the lead away from the Warders. His last two double-deckers gave the Paper Makers the game. Hines scored fifteen points in the Paper Mill's win.

TWO POLICEMEN SAVE EIGHT CHILDREN

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—The heroism of two policemen saved eight children, a woman and a young man from death by fire here today. Plunging into the roaring flames devouring two homes, the patrolmen, Sergeant Wm. Dorsey and policeman Thomas A. Cranston rescued the ten persons from second story fire traps.

TAXICAB STRIKE ENDS

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—The taxicab drivers' strike, forerunner and cause of a general Philadelphia transportation walkout, which it alone survived, was ended today after 7 weeks of violence, bloodshed and sabotage. By the overwhelming vote of approximately five to one, the striking cab operators voted to accept the settlement drawn up by their union leaders and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, owner of the city's largest taxi franchise.

Show Much Better Averages week was little changed from the previous seven-day period when output was 33,876 barrels.

Glass, rubber and textiles reported conditions unchanged from previous weeks.

From individual sections, reports of increased optimism are being received almost daily. In the Ohio River Valley, at Rochester and Ambridge, particularly, steel and glass works are getting ready for a prosperous year.

Figures for the entire month of December show that business activity has increased 2.8 per cent over November, 26.7 per cent over December 1932 and 41.5 per cent over March, 1933.

Other figures for the comparison are:

Percentage	Nov. 1933	Dec. 1933	March 1933
Production	x 7.1	x 35.0	x 56.6
Iron and Steel	x 17.1	x 90.2	x 128.6
Electric Power	x 0.3	x 5.9	x 15.7
Coal	x 1.4	x 5.9	x 24.1
Rail Shipments	x 5.2	x 31.9	x 55.8

traveled an average of 12,000 miles per man by motorcycle and by automobile they averaged 400 miles per month per man.

Sergeant Discavage, in his inspection work during 1933 traveled a total of 17,455 miles or more than an average of 1500 miles per month. In addition to his regular inspection work, Sergeant Discavage investigated 46 complaints.

During 1933 the local substation made approximately 600 arrests the annual report showed.

There were twenty-three drunken drivers arrested during 1933 and the court records show that twenty-one convictions were obtained. The value of the stolen cars recovered amounted to $14,750 in 1933.

One of the improvements of service at the State Highway Patrol station is the arrangement made with the telephone authorities to enable people calling for a patrol officer to ask the telephone operator for "State Highway Patrol" without asking for a particular telephone number.

During 1933 thirty-four stolen cars were recovered. The annual report shows that in 1933 there were fewer accidents than in 1932.

That motorists are abiding by regulations better than in any other year is evident from the fact that only thirteen arrests were made in the territory covered by the entire Troop E for illegal licenses (1933 tags) and one of those was in Doylestown.
